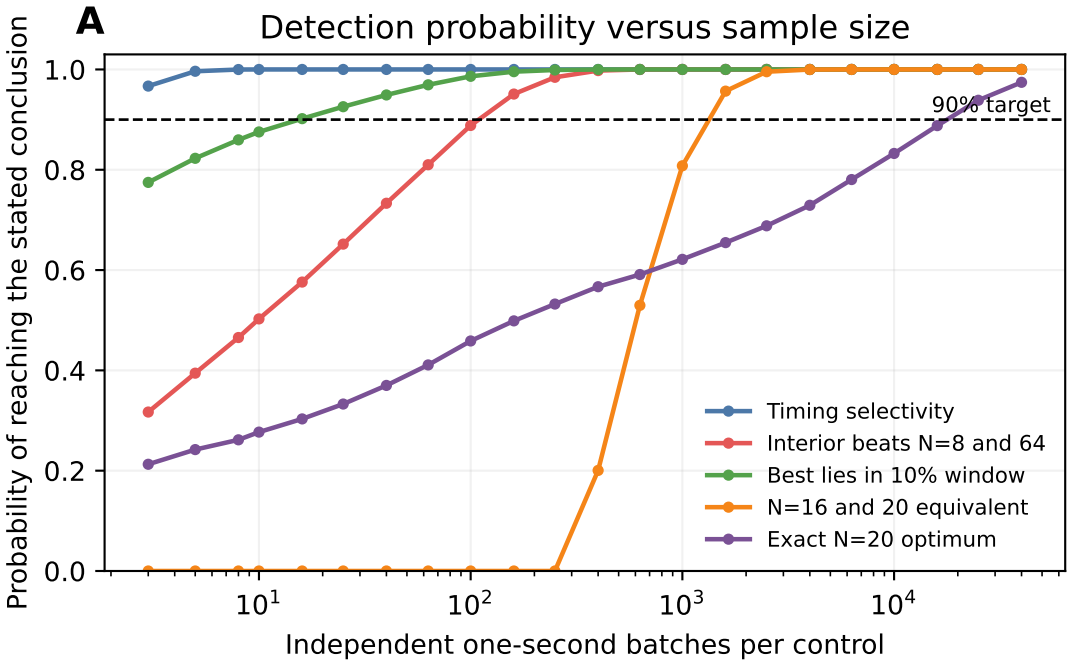
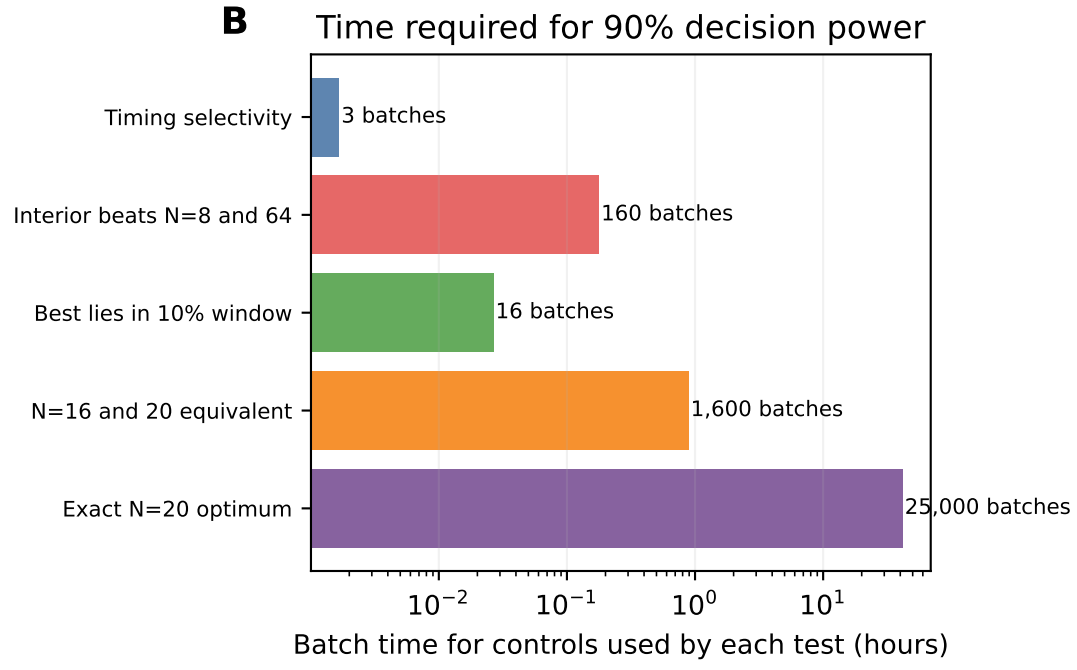
The operating window is easier to test than the exact optimum





Prospective calculation under nominal predictions; one-second independent batches and Gaussian field-estimate noise assumed.